One juvenile is chased, caught

Law enforcement vehicles from several agencies, including the University of California at Davis and the West Sacramento Police Department, converged on West Sacramento's Poplar/West Capitol Ave. area Wednesday afternoon in an effort to capture two juvenile burglary suspects.

"The University of California police department had a burglary there," said Sgt. Rick Mayoral of the West Sacramento Police Department. "They spotted a vehicle and pursued it into West Sacramento, where the vehicle rear-ended somebody near Poplar and West Capitol."

Two juvenile boys were believed to be in the suspects' car at the time.

"One kid was pinned in behind the driver's seat and the other started running. The last they saw him was in the area of Proctor Ave. That's where we lost him."

The first suspect was treated for minor injuries and taken into custody by UCD police.

Police searched for the second suspect, using dogs.

"They kept going to a particular house, but we couldn't get access to the house. We don't know if it was his house, and if he was in there, he sure wasn't answering the door."

Mayoral said it was unknown if the fleeing suspect lived in that particular house, and added that police never got a very good look at him.

Toy gun used in robbery at ATM

Two people were arrested shortly after a robbery near an automatic teller at a local bank on Sunday.

The incident began shortly after 10 a.m. at Bank of America on West Capitol Avenue, when a man approached a woman at the teller machine who was about to make a transaction. He appeared to have a handgun, and demanded money.

Music festival goes off smoothly

Sunday evening's musical benefit for the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services department appeared to be a success, as the scheduled acts appeared one-by-one on a makeshift stage on the lawn of First Nationwide Bank's campus-like offices near Reed and I-80.

Richard Thompson, a British folk-rocker, headlined the event.

Attendance and financial information was not immediately available for the second-annual Riverbank Music Festival, which was staged by promoter Rudy Martinez and parks department staff.

Any profits will go towards programs put on by the local parks department, which has suffered during recent budget cuts.

Beach chairs, parasols and shorts were the audience's equipment of choice.

'Red-haired kid with a big smile' will be remembered

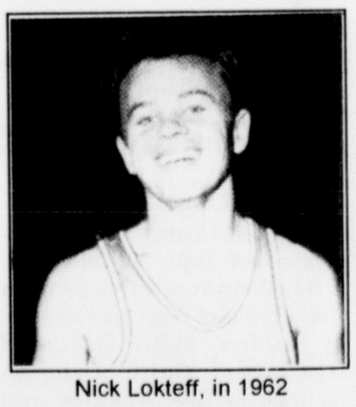

■ Members of the far-flung Marshall High School Class of '63 will reunite in memory of one of their own, after the mystery of his disappearance was solved 32 years later

By Steve Marschke

On a clear day in July of 1962, four friends took off in a rented Piper Commanche from an airport in Sacramento for Fresno, California. They were on their way to see a Billy Graham revival.

The plane never arrived, and although the four have been presumed dead for several decades, their fate was not definitely known until a hiker discovered the burnt wreckage of the Commanche last month, near the rim of Stubblefield Canyon in Yosemite.

Although the cause of the crash is still undetermined -- and may remain that way forever, since the passage of time and the condition of the wreckage may combine to hinder investigators, a lot of local people feel they can finally put the memories of their friends to rest.

Nick Lokteff, in 1962

The fate of pilot Alvie Taylor, 26, of Sacramento, is now known. So are the fates of West Sacramento natives Nick Lokteff, 17; Ben Amegin, 27; and Paul Sokol, 23.

This Saturday, at 5 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in West Sacramento, friends and relatives of Nick Lokteff will gather in his memory. Among the crowd, said fellow class member Louisa Vessell, will be a number of Marshall High students from Lokteff's era.

"Everybody heard about the plane being discovered," said Vessell. "The word has spread like wildfire."

Vessell said that Lokteff, who was a junior at the school (now called River City High School), was a "ray of sunshine" on campus. "He had a big smile and a full head of red hair," she said. "He had a very positive outlook on life. He made an impact on everybody who knew him."

Lokteff grew up in "Bryte," now a northwestern neighborhood in the young city of West Sacramento. He was part of a Russian-heritage family in that district, which is known for its Russian-American residents.

Bill Kristoff, now a city council member in West Sacramento, was a year behind Nick Lokteff in school and played basketball with him on the Marshall High team.

"Nick was a little older," remembered Kristoff, who now serves as postmaster of the Bryte post office. "I really didn't know him that well. "The only thing I can really remember is that we were in high school and we heard rumors that we lost one of our schoolmates. Nobody knew how it happened. It was rumored that those people got in an airplane and got lost, and maybe got turned around and went over the ocean."

An extensive search following reports that the airplane was missing turned up no clues. But in August, an off-duty trailworker in a remote area found the wreckage, and ended a 32-year old mystery.

'MacBlo' paper plant still waiting for go-ahead on wastewater permit; planners discuss extending permit

■ Planners to discuss giving the paper plant project more time; action on proposed "Cheaper!" store is postponed

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on an extension of the city's development agreement with proponents of a local paper recycling plant on Thursday, Sept. 15, at 6:00 p.m. in city council chambers.

Construction of the project was first locally approved in 1992, but the MacMillan Bloedel/Haindl Papier newsprint facility (planned for the Southport Industrial Park near the Port of Sacramento) has been delayed for both economic and environmental reasons.

Currently at issue is whether the planned new city sewage plant can adequately treat the project wastes from the plant before discharging them into the Sacramento River. An environmental impact report for the wastewater issue has been repeatedly delayed pending results of testing from a sister plant in Germany.

Recent estimates from the planning department were that a draft of this EIR is due to be released in November for public review and comment.

The Canadian and German backers of the plant -- which would be one of the largest of its kind in the world -- have reportedly re-opened negotiations for other possible sites for the facility, since the approval process has stalled for the West Sacramento project. The southern California city of Colton is courting the plant.

Early in the process, Turlock and West Sacramento found themselves in competition for the facility (although a desire to "win" the competition was not unanimous in either city). West Sacramento got the nod.

In other local planning news:

■ Traffic issues related to the proposed "Cheaper!" gas and grocery store planned for the corner of Jefferson Blvd. and Linden Rd. in the southern part of West Sacramento have been sent back for more staff homework.

A number of members of the public voiced concern at a hearing on the proposal last Thursday. A key issue was whether the store would increase or decrease traffic over the barge canal at Jefferson Blvd. Current city policy is that no new construction can take place in Southport until a new bridge is built -- unless the new development will reduce traffic across the barge canal.

County budget:

Yolo County may have received a partial reprieve from its 1994-95 budget problems, as the state legislature has designated it to be one of eight California counties which is particularly "distressed" and which will benefit from a one-time revenue shift.

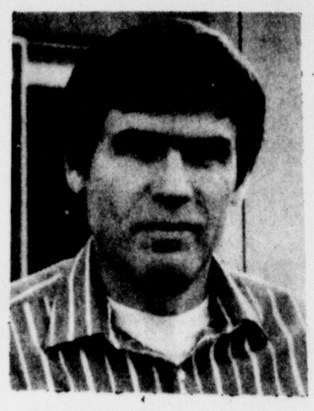

The county's recommended budget of $157.3 million for the year currently depends on a $760,000 dip into the reserves to balance the books. But the new bill, AB 2082, is hoped to cause a $13.97 revenue shift from the state schools general fund to the counties of Butte, Del Norte, Humboldt, Lassen, Mendocino, Merced, Siskiyou and Yolo. Yolo's share of this revenue will be $500,000.

The bill may yet be vetoed by the governor.

Yolo County has taken a net loss of $2 million since the state began a series of revenue transfers from local governments to schools, in an effort to balance recent state budget deficits.

25 years doesn't dim memory of this anniversary

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Today is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the day I was wounded in Vietnam. You never believe it's going to happen to you, and even as the force of the explosion lifted me off my feet and hurled me through the air, I refused to accept the fact that my turn had finally arrived. The initial flash of pain in my left side was excruciating, but by the time I had belly-flopped back to earth, it was nothing but a dull ache.

Then, just when I had convinced myself that I wasn't dead and everything was probably going to be okay, my whole lower back went on fire, as if someone was branding me with a red hot metal poker. I reached around and desperately tried to pound out the flame. When I brought my hand back up in front of my eyes, the sight of my own bright red blood terrified me.

I struggled to my knees and like a dog chasing his own tail, I spun around and around, unsuccessfully trying to see how bad I had been hit.

Suddenly, out of nowhere, my squad leader hurled the full force of his shoulder into my chest, the way gung ho football players do to blocking dummies in practice. The solid blow flattened me and he screamed, "Stay down!"

The words were barely out of his mouth when another half-dozen or so rocket propelled grenades exploded into the nearby ground and filled the air with more flying dirt and shrapnel. Then the L-shaped ambush we had walked into began with deadly earnest. The heart-stopping sound of AK-47 automatic weapons fire seemed to be coming from every direction, followed shortly by the unfamiliar whistling sounds of larger enemy rockets which began raining down and violently shaking the earth I was clutching. My whole body shook and vibrated as my squad leader and I burrowed deeper into the loose, wet soil and held our steel pots tightly to our heads. As I laid there next to him listening to the screams and pleas of other members of my thirty-man platoon, a hundred thoughts raced through my mind, but the only one I really remember is silently asking God not to let me die half-a-world away from home.

Last night, as I sat out in the calm and safety of my own backyard patio, I was surprised at how many details I could still recall from that long ago day near a little Vietnamese village called Lai Khe. I remembered how it had poured all that morning and how thick and oxygen-starved the air seemed; how the leather straps supporting my waterlogged backpack kept digging painfully into my shoulder blades no matter how often I reached back and tried to adjust them; how concerned our Audie Murphy look-alike ground combat officer seemed and how he kept playing around in a leg pocket of his faded green and black jungle fatigues with an old battered compass he always carried with him; how everyone seemed to be straining their ears more than usual for a clue to our fate as we cautiously trudged through the dense, chest-high elephant grass; how it took four side-by-side armored personnel carriers with huge M50 machine guns blazing away to finally end our stalemated struggle; how one of those machine guns had been manned by a burly, unshaven GI with a sadistic grin on his face and a cigar dangling from his lips; and when it was finally over, how all the smells of that day's fighting and dying were still locked inside my nostrils when I fully awoke from surgery the next afternoon.

"You want to play the winner?" asked my oldest son, Ty, as he and his brother, Paul, suddenly started up a table tennis match right next to me on the patio.

"Not right now," I answered, grateful though for the company.

As I watched them begin leisurely bouncing a yellow ping-pong ball back and forth, I reluctantly reminded myself of history's saddest lesson--that there has always been another stupid war for young men to go off and die in--and I couldn't help but wonder what kind of craziness awaits their generation. Would they--like my grandfather--be needed to supposedly make the world safe for democracy once again; would they--like my father--have to help civilized people everywhere get rid of another idiot like Hitler; or would they--like me--somehow find themselves with a rifle in their hand humping around in a distant jungle without a clue about why they had been sent there?

"So, Dad, you out here having yourself another one of those good thinks of yours?" asked Ty with a smile, obviously referring to something I had said about Gomer Pyle in a column I wrote a couple of weeks ago.

"Want me to go get you a pail to put over your head?" added Paul with a laugh.

"Okay, I'll play the lucky winner," I said to my smiling sons, fully aware that for exactly twenty-five years today, that person has been me.

Keeping youth involved in the positive side of life

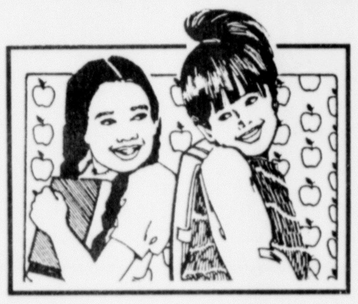

By David Stoebel
Director, Yolo Unite

Drugs, gangs, violence, AIDS, pregnancy, school failure. Today we are faced with an epidemic of problems among our youth. To complicate matters, these problems are almost always inter-related. Gang violence accompanies drugs trafficking. Children who drop out of school, become pregnant or father babies, frequently are involved with alcohol or illicit drugs. Injection drug users transmit the HIV virus.

At first, our society's response to these problems was highly individualized and almost always too late. We would identify people with the problems and try to fix them or, failing that, we would put them in jail.

Lately, however, a new approach has come on the scene. Prevention, taking action before a problem occurs became increasingly popular as taxpayers started to recognize the high cost of treating or locking up young people who have gone astray.

Even so prevention often has an after the fact quality. Many prevention programs have tried to identify "youth at risk," kids who already have some early problems, and have attempted to fix those problems. While a step up from incarceration, these efforts still are coming far too late. Furthermore, the at-risk approach is exclusive, it targets those who already have a problem and ignores those who don't but could have one later.

That's why I was delighted when a new way of viewing the issues came along. Building Resiliency: What Works!, a publication of The National Assembly of National Voluntary Health and Social Welfare Organizations, has moved the discussion forward in a big step.

This 94 page book sets out an idea that should be intuitive to all of us: Youth Development -- purposely seeking to meet youth's needs and build their competencies so that they can become successful adults -- is, or should be, the core of our community and national efforts to stop the scourges decimating this generation.

The book lays out what youths need to become healthy and successful: They must have their basic needs met and they must develop some basic skills.

Youths' needs are simple, they must have a sense of:
Safety and structure;
Belonging and membership;
Self-worth, status and an ability to contribute;
Independence, autonomy and control over their lives;
Closeness and several good relationships; and,
Competence and mastery.

Likewise, the skills kids must build are simple. They must develop:
Physical competence: Good health and the knowledge, attitudes and behaviors to assure future health;
Social competence: The skills to establish positive relationships with others;
Cognitive competence: The ability to reason, plan and solve problems;
Vocational competence: A sense of direction and an orientation for success;
Moral competence: The development of character, values and a desire to contribute to the common good.

These are simple and fundamental things that kids need. If they don't get them from their families and our community institutions like schools, workplaces, media, they will seek them wherever they can: from peer groups, gangs, Bevis and Butthead and MTV.

Fortunately, there are some important efforts going on here in Yolo County to help us turn the corner. Throughout the county, volunteers, parents, even youths themselves are working with Yolo United, other organizations or even on their own to build programs and institutions for helping kids meet their needs and build competencies in healthy life affirming ways.

From recreation programs like 3-3 basketball to mentoring programs that pair kids with role models, people in Yolo County are taking action to help insure that our young people develop to be healthy adults.

At the same time, the Youth Services Task Force, composed of educators, police, community planners and youth workers under the leadership of county superintendent of schools, Elizabeth Zemmels, is developing a plan to create communities that actually promote healthy youth development. They are seeking the participation of our civic and governmental leaders to build neighborhoods where people care for the kids who live there, encourage schools that nurture the whole child and make workplaces where teens can start on the path to healthy adulthood. Their goal is to make Yolo County a community that invests in and nurtures its young.

I urge you to join one of these efforts. The cost of not acting is too high to tolerate.

Raiders lose a disappointing game

By Chuck Robinson

The River City High School football coaching staff was left scratching their heads after prepping for this Friday's season-opener against Division I C.K. McClatchy. The Raiders were the talk of last Thursday's jamboree at Consumnes River College. Returning backfield stars Justin Hanks (Q.B.); Alex Victor (H.B.); Paul Barber (F.B.) and Josh Castro (H.B.) decimated Kennedy High School by scoring 6 touchdowns in a timed 20 minutes scrimmage. Wide receiver Duke Serowchak and halfback Jeremy Deaton were also impressive. Interior linemen Joe Arch, Nick Correa, Steve Hawkinson, Sam Savala and Jeremy Fristoe dominated the line of scrimmage against a larger Kennedy front four. The River City defense looked much improved over last season, holding Florin High School to 2 touchdowns rushing and 1 touchdown passing in a 20-minute scrimmage. Paul Barber (L.B.); Alex Victor (S); Joe Flores (D.T.); Ryan Carr (D.E.); and Terry Warford (N.T.) all made key tackles.

After a light Friday practice, the Raiders traveled to Rio Linda for a Saturday jamboree. River City appeared lethargic and inconsistent, particularly on defense. The Jekyll and Hyde performance left the coaches wondering what team will show up for Friday's showdown with McClatchy.

The Raiders received more bad news with the shoulder injury to halfback Alex Victor. The highly regarded 3-year starter was poised to break the school career rushing record but will be unavailable for an undetermined amount of time while he recovers. The injury occurred during Thursday's scrimmage and will definitely sideline him for the McClatchy game.

Head coach Rod Massey had his appraisal: "It's a shame about Alex, but that's part of football. We can't cry about it. We still have a lot of weapons. My number one concern right now is our sub-par performance at Rio Linda. Our defense in general and line play in particular was unacceptable. McClatchy is so big and strong up front that we must show improvement in this area immediately."

Defensive coordinator Chris Baker echoed Massey's observations: "I'm disgusted with Saturday's performance. We were slow, out of position, and made an intolerable amount of mental mistakes. I hate to sound like the prophet of doom but I feared that this might happen. In fact, we addressed it on the bus on the way over. It just goes to show you that you can never let down in this game.

Stats for the Two-Day Scrimmages

Last Thursday, River City scrimmaged against Kennedy and Florin. In a 20-minute scrimmage against Kennedy, River City scored 3 touchdowns rushing and 3 touchdowns passing. In 20 minutes against Florin, they scored 2 touchdowns rushing and 1 touchdown passing. Overall, River City had 323 yards rushing, 5 touchdowns, and passed for 112 yards and 3 touchdowns. Justin Hanks, at quarterback, completed 6 of 10 passes for the 112 yards and 3 touchdowns. Rushing for River City was Paul Barber, 142 yards, 2 touchdowns; Alex Victor, 62 yards; Josh Castro, 41 yards, 3 touchdowns; Jeremy Deaton, 28 yards, 1 touchdown; Justin Hanks, 26 yards; Matt DeGroot, 17 yards; and Angel Cardenas, 7 yards. Duke Serowchak caught 3 passes for 73 yards, 2 touchdowns; Josh Castro, 1 for 4-yd touchdown; Angel Cardenas, 1 for 25 yards; and Paul Barber, 1 for 10 yards.

Saturday, River City scrimmaged against Burbank, Rio Linda, and East Union. Each team on offense carried the ball for 15 plays. Against Burbank, River City had 67 yards rushing, 1 touchdown and passed for 95 yards, 2 touchdowns. Against Rio Linda, River City had 59 yards rushing with 1 touchdown. Against East Union, River City had 151 yards rushing, 4 touchdowns and 48 yards passing. Overall, River City had 277 yards rushing, 6 touchdowns, and passed for 143 yards and 2 touchdowns. At quarterback, Justin Hanks completed 5 of 8 passes for 143 yards and 2 touchdowns. Duke Serowchak caught 2 for 53 yards, 1 touchdown; Matt DeGroot, 1 for 35 yards; Josh Castro, 1 for 40 yards, 1 touchdown; and Paul Barber, 1 for 15 yards. Rushing was led by Paul Barber, 83 yards, 2 touchdowns; Justin Hanks, 59 yards, 2 touchdowns; Josh Castro, 50 yards, 2 touchdowns; Matt DeGroot, 28 yards; Johnny Phoutachack, 25 yards; Jeremy Deaton, 22 yards; and Terry Warford, 10 yards.

This Friday night, River City will be at home for the first game against McClatchy. JV time is 5:30 p.m. and varsity follows at 7:30 p.m.

Jerry Rice provided a record crowd of 68,032, the largest in Candlestick history, with one of the greatest moments in NFL history. Rice scored three touchdowns to break Jim Brown's record for the NFL's all-time touchdown leader.

Brown's record of 126 TDs has held up for 29 years.

Rice led the 49ers to a 44-14 thrashing of the defenseless Raiders. The touchdowns gave Jerry 127 for his young career. Next week, Rice takes his 127 TDs on the road to face Joe Montana and the Kansas City Chiefs.

The 49ers will beat Kansas City next Sunday 28-17.

The Raiders will have to regroup next week at home against the Seahawks.

Look for the Raiders to bounce back after the embarrassing loss to the 49ers on Monday Night Football. Raiders 31, Seattle 23.

The Sacramento Gold Miners (3-5-1) tied the B.C. Lions 15-15 last Friday before a disappointing crows of less than 13,000 fans. Fred Anderson, the owner of the Gold Miners, needs crowds of over 20,000 fans per game to survive the 1994 season. The team lost over $4 million last year! I heard rumors that he may move the team to Oakland if the attendance doesn't improve. At the half way point of the season, the Miners signed former first-round draft choice of the 49ers Terrence Flagler, a running back.

The Sacramento Knights clinched the fourth and final spot in the playoffs and begin the best-of-three series against the Anaheim Splash on Saturday in Anaheim. The series continues on Monday, Sept. 12 at the ARCO Arena, and if a third game is necessary, the Knights will have to travel back to Anaheim. Plent of good seats are still available.

World Championship Boxing is set for Caesars Tahoe on Saturday, Sept. 10 at 7:15 p.m. The IBF/WBC Light Flyweight Chiquita Gonzalez (39-2; 27 KOs) takes on Juan Cordoba (16-1; 11 KOs). The undercard will feature Carlos Hernandez vs. Jose Ocampo and West Sac's undefeated fighter Willie Jorrin. Ticket prices start at $25. For tickets, call Caesar's Tahoe 1-800-648-3353 or any BASS outlet.

See ya next week!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Comments on Buddhist temple, paper plant:

It looks like a city council discussion of the proposed Buddhist temple, monastery and nunnery on the old El Rancho Hotel site is a good idea. The suggestion for the discussion came from councilman Bill Kristoff, after the city planning commission gave the Buddhist association the thumbs-up.

The key will be whether, as Kristoff says, the proponents of this project will be treated "like any other developer." They should not be favored because they are a religious organization; nor should they, as one News-Ledger letter-writer pointed out, be stigmatized because they are not involved in what many Americans would consider a familiar and mainstream religion.

But the plans for the property will have a large impact on the rest of the city, and these plans should be discussed and modified in such a way that any negative effects will be reduced.

After all, what was once a proud and profitable commercial complex has just been taken off the tax rolls.

The MacMillan Bloedel Co. has let it be known that it is indeed once again looking at different sites, besides West Sacramento, to build its new paper recycling plant.

One element of this news, of course, is that it is intended to get local competitive juices moving in an effort to speed approval of the project. Don't forget, West Sacramento was pitted against Turlock several years ago when the company was first looking for a California site to make recycled newspaper, and a certain segment of each city's civic leadership bent over backwards to grease the tracks for the project.

West Sacramento "won."

The new "competition," no doubt, is hoped to have the same effect, as the plant struggles to meet environmental approval.

Does this mean that the company's consideration of other cities is totally insincere?

Probably not. In fact, the plant probably has a less than even chance of ever being built in West Sacramento. Whether it gets built anywhere else in California, in its current configuration, is also anybody's guess.

In defense of 'Three Strikes'

Keeping felons out of prison is even more expensive

By Dan Lungren
California Attorney General

California's "Three Strikes and You're Out" law is under attack even before the ink on the newly signed measure is dry. Unfortunately, this law is the subject of premature criticism claiming it is too harsh and too expensive.

Remember that "Three Strikes" was sparked by the tragic 1992 murder of Kimber Reynolds, who was shot in the head for resisting her attackers during a simple purse snatching.

Lenient punishments for repeat offenders cost Kimber's father, Mike Reynolds, his only daughter. Would reducing the effectiveness of "Three Strikes and You're Out" be worth the expense of even more innocent lives?

"Three Strikes" is a tough law. However, it is important to consider that third strikes under this measure are imposed only on individuals who have committed two prior serious or violent felonies. People prosecuted under "Three Strikes" receive 25 years to life or three times the regular sentence, whichever is longer.

Some critics would argue that a person charged with a third strike is more likely to have been caught breaking into a house, stealing a car, or possessing drugs instead of committing more serious offenses like murder or assault. I, like most Californians, consider residential burglary and selling drugs to be serious offenses that should be included as strikes.

Furthermore, "Three Strikes and You're Out" is working properly to remove dangerous repeat offenders from our society. Criminals charged with a third strike are not new prisoners. They have been rotated in and out of the system many times.

"Three Strikes" is punishing the violent criminals for whom it was designed. In Orange County, a man is being charged under the law for shooting a bar patron in the face with a flare gun after a dispute. His previous strikes include a knife attack and beating a man to steal his wallet. Sacramento County's first conviction under the new law was for a man found guilty of possessing a firearm and pistol-whipping his victim. His previous strikes include molestation and drug sales. In Contra Costa, a man is facing his third strike for suspicion of strong-arm robbery, possessing a loaded firearm, possessing a concealed weapon, battery, auto theft and violating a restraining order. His previous strikes were for rape.

It is true that putting hardened criminals behind bars and keeping them there is expensive. But the cost to both victims and innocent society of leaving proven career criminals out on the streets is far greater. I believe the benefit of the doubt ought to go to the victims and the law abiding public.

Letters to the Editor

The first paragraph of a letter written last week by resident Bill Lowell was inadvertantly clipped. The editor apologizes. That paragraph should have read:

That move by Sacramento authorities to prevent "non-Sacramento County users" from utilizing any Sacramento waste disposal facilities seems very unfair since the vast majority of "consumer-customers" are from Sacramento County. So while the action was obviously aimed at reducing West Sacramento's ability to handle its sewage and industrial waste and hence its ability to compete for having new big business locate here, West Sacramento can opt for one or more of the following actions: (1) Charge more for sewage/waste disposal -- by volume, if possible -- for those businesses creating the most waste and whose majority of "consumer-customers" are in Sacramento County; (2) Charge more/cause more to be charged for landfill in Yolo County when the waste is from Sacramento; (3) Keep a close eye on those businesses operating under a Conditional Use Permit and not allow continued use by those contributing too heavily to the industrial waste problem...or, if it is benefiting Sacramento too much, or a combination of the two.

Muse-ings

I am going to press Ms. Hope Herr's button, as she stated in her letter to the News-Ledger on August 31, just one more time, as she appears to lock horns with right-wing conservative republicans and loves every word of it.

I never once mentioned the word Ted Kennedy in my letter; however, when the word Chappaquidick comes up, it seems everyone knows who is associated with it. Ms. Herr, by your own admission, you are a left-wing liberal democrat, well you have a whole score of role models to name just a few, there are Ted Kennedy of Chappaquiddick fame; George Mitchell; Dick Gephardt of the gun grab fame; Christopher Dodd of hearings disruptions fame; John Glenn and Allen Cranston of Lincoln Savings and Loan fame; and don't forget Dan Rottenknowsky of post office fame, and on and on and on. And there are rotten republicans too, so this is why Washington, D.C. smells so bad. There is more corruption there than any city in the U.S.A. It appears there are few politicians who can be trusted with your tax dollars. Oh, I forgot Bill and Hillary of Madison Savings and Loan and Whitewater fame. If we can't beat em, we can join em, why not?

So, Ms. Herr, it sounds as if you have a very loving husband who

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 6 inches at the S. P. bridge yesterday. The gauge at this writing is not reliable in any sense of the word bcause every day from 1 foot to 14 inchs of tide is noticeable at the bridge and directly north of the city intake of Sacramento. It may be noticed that much of the floating debris pumped into the river by the City Sump at Front and U floats back to the intake and is frequently gobbled up in the suction of the city pump.

Under Sheriff Bob Woods spent a couple of days of the past week with his mother, Mrs. McDonough. In pastime he tried his luck on the river and landed two fine bass which he took back to Woodland with him.

Mrs. B. Moss was taken very seriously ill last Sunday night with sciatic rheumatism and was threatened for a time until the proper remedies were applied for relief. The complaint extended itself all over her body and became really dangerous until medical relief was obtained. Yesterday her condition was very much improved, even though she is advanced in years and has been a hard worker all her lifetime.

Last Tuesday Judge Barry had before him on charges of vagrancy Bert Williams and Frank O'Brien. Both were new comers in the town and believed they could make an easy living by begging from their neighbors. Constable Buckingham told them that Sheriff Monroe had a hospitable institution in Woodland where they might be accommodated for thirty days.

Howard H. Lee has recovered from several days illness during the past week.

Last Saturday Miss Doris Norton with her two brothers, William and Frank, went to Ashton, Idaho, where they will remain for several months with close relatives.

For the present term the Parent-Teachers Association has closed its business and at a meeting held last Tuesday the affairs of the club were wound up with a substantial balance left in the treasury.

Mrs. Tom Evans is at her home after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. H. A. Harris in Oakland.

Tony Grabo left last Sunday for Buffalo, N. Y., to make his future home there.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. F. Stumbo were the guests off Mr. and Mrs. F. Moser at the latter's home on Third street.

The Cameron family have returned from a visit to the Yosemite Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harms have moved to Sacramento to make their permanent home there.

Mrs. Nellie Wolsert, a sister of Mrs. C. Hart, is visiting at the Hart home on 2nd street. She is accompanied by her son.

At the home of Harry Bell in Riverbank last Tuesday, June 24th, the 20th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bell was celebrated by a little coterie of near friends. Refreshments were served during the evening and a general good time was had by those present who were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stahl, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rice, Md. and Mrs. Ed. Gerkin, Mrs. P. Steele and Miss Aileen Stahl.

Last Saturday Mrs. Wm. Russell was the hostess of her son, Captain Chester La Rue and Frank Marshall, who came up from Oakland on a short visit. La Rue has lately returned from France where he spent nearly two years with the Signal Corps and distinguished himself in such a way as to be promoted to the rank of Captain.

Miss Effie White has gone to San Francisco to take a position in the Spanish section of the Sutro Library. Some time ago she passed the necessary examination for librarians and distinguished herself in Spanish. The apointment of Miss White is a distinction of which she should be very proud, for out of a number who took the examination only three passed. Mrs. White, her mother, will remain with her daughter until she is permanently located in the bay city.

Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Rickard were visitors to Knights Landing last Sunday, guests of relatives.

Last Sunday P. A. Hart and family made a flying trip to Napa.

Mrs. E. Klefman and twin daughters, accompanied by Mrs. Klefman's mother, have gone to Shasta Retreat where they will spend several months. Later on they will be joined by Miss Icy Klefman and Hugo Frommelt.

The W. B. McClare family, with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Smith, are at home after spending two weeks vacation at Lake Tahoe. The trip was made by auto.

The brush on the school lot on 3rd street between the Town Hall and the S. P. bridge which has served as a refuge for tramps for several years has been cleared away by Constable Buckingham, I. K. Manchester and J. S. Lear. Under the flooring was found a veritable bed of feathers which evidently had been plucked from chickens from the Lear henhouse in the immediate neighborhood.

Martin McDonough was down from Knights Landing last Monday for a short visit with his family. He is Deputy Sheriff for Reclamation District No. 108, and does all he can to keep booze out of that dry territory.

GREAT ADDITION TO CALIFORNIA STATE RICE MILLING CO'S MILL WILL BE STARTED JULY 1

THE HAPPY EXPERIENCE OF THE CORPORATION IN THIS SECTION OF THE COUNTY WARRANTS FURTHER EXPENDITURE FOR MORE ACCOMMODATION

On July 1st bids will be received by the California State Rice Milling Company for the construction of an additional warehouse to its plant in West Sacramento.

The new addition will be an enormous building measuring overall 150x350 feet.

This warehouse will be built on the west side of the railroad track leading to the mill and will be used mostly for storage purposes, enabling the corporation to hold during many months of each year great quantities that cannot be handled on their arrival at the mill.

Finished products will also find a safe storage place in this warehouse, and although the warehouse room is already extensive this additional accommodation will give the corporation every opportunity to expand both in finished products and in experimentation.

Manager T. J. Garvey of the mill property is authority for the statement that the new building will be completed in 90 days or about the time for the new crop of rice begging to arrive from the fields of Yolo, Butte and Sutter Counties.

During the busy season last year the California State Rice Milling Company employed about seventy-five men. With the new addition it is possible that more than 100 men will find employment on the premises.

The California State Rice Milling Co. is a Louisiana corporation that settled on this side of the river with a permanent concrete structure of vast dimensions, intended to be of permanent benefit to the promoters and the rice growers of California.

In this connection, it may be said that in the construction of the plant about to be built, nothing but home products will be used and home labor will be hired when sufficient can be secured. All the materials that are going into the construction of this plant will be secured in Sacramento.

The cost of the building will reach into the thousands and its construction is an evidence of the permanency of the rice mill in its present site.

ABSURD PROVISIONS OF PROHIBITION ENABLING ACT

Washington, June 24.—A man's right to store liquor in his home for the long dry period after July 1st, stood up to-day against an attack on that provision of the prohibition enforcement bill before the House Judiciary Committee.

Near the end of an all-day session, the committee voted down an amendment which would have made it unlawful for a citizen to have liquor in his possession; struck out a section which would have prevented "use" by a citizen of liquor in his private dwelling, and decided that in the matter of general enforcement there would be no difference between war time and constitutional prohibition.

Even with this and other changes the bill as it will be reported out tomorrow or Thursday is considered as "all embracing." So drastic are its provisions, members of the committee said, that while a man may put a keg of beer in his cellar he may be convicted and fined if, for instance, he wears a watch fob on which there is a picture of the keg as an advertisement.

In a general consideration of the measure the committee made a number of minor changes, but the principal fight was over the question of the right of home storage for personal use. Representative Morgan, Democrat of Oklahoma, endeavored to have stricken out the section that it "shall not be unlawful to possess liquor in one's private dwelling, while the same is occupied and used by him only as his dwelling."

Ardent prohibitionists on the committee voted against the Morgan proposal for the reason, they said, that nothing was to be gained by enacting a law so drastic as to arouse the hostility of people who rejoiced that the day of the saloon had ended.

Prohibition members supported an amendment eliminating the proviso that the liquor must be obtained and placed in storage prior to date the act became effective.

A resident of Napa complains that an inmate of the asylum who was discharged as being cured cut his throat and disfigured him badly while in a barber chair.

The cloak of paternalism is surely extended if he can secure damages from the State.

ONE MILLION HOMES ARE NEEDED IN UNITED STATES

Atlantic City, N. J., June 25.—There is a shortage of 1,000,000 homes in the United States, according to William H. Garland of Los Angeles, President of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at the Twenty-fifth Annual Convention of which body opened here today.

The association, he said, will cooperate with the Federal officials of the United States housing Commission in providing enough homes to meet the pressing demands.

The association, he added, does not, however, approve of the Housing Commission remaining in existence after the problem of a shortage in houses has been solved.

AT ADVANCED AGE MRS. MARGARET MARSTON CALLED

Last Monday, June 23d, Mrs. Margaret Marston passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. O. P. Cook, on Third street.

Mrs. Marston was past her 78th year and until a few weeks ago, when she became afflicted with cancer, was able to be around her home and was even useful as a member of the Cook family.

She was a native of England but was one of the pioneers of Washington, having arrived here in 1870.

Subsequently she spent some years at Monterey and later 23 years near Woodland, where her husband died several years ago. Her funeral was held on Wednesday and the remains were placed beside her life partner in the cemetery at Woodland.

Mrs. Marston was a worthy woman who attended strictly to her household affairs. Her home was her church and her prayers were for happiness and the prosperity of her children. Of outward show she cared nothing and although raised a Baptist she attended services but seldom.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Cook, with whom she made her home, she left to mourn her Mrs. Mamie Ford of Roseville and Mrs. Mabel Gordon of Napa, daughters. She was a sister of Mrs. Anne Chambers of Wisconsin, grandmother of Mrs. Inez Thorburn, Ethel and Floyd Cook, Frank and Delbert Gordon.

Several members of the Rebekah Lodge of Sacramento, No. 160, attended her funeral, representing the order of which she was a member.

LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE WILL MEET JULY 11TH

The committee of the League to Enforce Peace of Yolo County, represented by Mrs. H. J. Shute, makes announcement that a meeting will be held on Friday evening, July 11th, 8:30 p. m., at Woodland.

Armory Hall in Woodland has been chosen to accommodate the meeting.

Although very litle labor is needed in the State of Nevada to harvest the crops, there is such a shortage of workingmen that an appeal has been made to the Federal Government for assistance.

All due to prohibition.

Two residents of Horabrook have been arrested for stealing nine cases of whiskey and one case of loganberry juice.

The liquor was to be used in Oregon, a dry State, on the 4th of July —not St. Patrick's Day.

GEORGE NEWTON AND MRS. KINCH WED AT SANTA CRUZ

On June 16th, George W. Newton and Mrs. Agnes Kinch were united in marriage by Rev. Labourne at Santa Cruz.

Even before the event took place rumors were current in Washington that an enduring affection had sprung up between the contracting parties and when Mrs. Kinch went away for a vacation there was an inkling that she would soon be accompanied by someone else.

June 25th they returned as man and wife.

Last Wednesday evening the youngsters of Washington gathered around the home and tendered an old-time charivari to the newly married couple.

Mrs. Newton is an estimable little lady and has been a resident of Washington during the past three years, except for a few months.

George Newton was born and raised in Washington and has been a permanent resident of the community with the exception of several months that he spent in the army of the United States at Washington and other eastern points.

They will make their permanent home over the grocery store on Second street where Mrs. Newton's business has been located.

MISS HAZEL FRAZIER AND REESE PEEK MARRIED

On Sunday, June 15th, Reese Peek of Washington and Miss Hazel Frazier were united in wedlock at the Methodist Church, Fifteenth and J streets, Sacramento.

The ceremony was a quiet affair witnessed only by a few immediate friends of the contracting couple.

Immediately following the wedding the newlyweds went to San Francisco for their honey moon.

Aug. 31

A witness who identified a suspect in another crime was beaten with a pool cue and injured by the suspect, who was out on bail and accused the victim of being a snitch. The incident occurred in a West Capitol Ave. motel room. The suspect was arrested at his Sacramento home.

Buddhist temple gets another look

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento City Council will take alook at the plans for a Buddhist temple, monastery and nunnery at the old El Ranch Hotel site at West Capitol Ave. and Merkley Ave. next Wednesday, Sept. 14.

The city planning commission has already approved the new owners' plans. But Bill Kristoff, a member of the city council (which appoints and oversees the planning commission) has asked that the matter be brought to the council.

"I realize that this is a permitted (land) use in that zone," Kristoff commented Tuesday. "The thing I was concerned about is that I'm not sure the proper amount of review has been done on that project."

Kristoff said that the project may deserve a full-blown environmental impact review (EIR) because its economic impacts may be great.

As a hotel, the site brought in property taxes, sales taxes, and lodging taxes (the transient occupancy tax, or TOT). As a religous site, these revenues could disappear from city coffers.

"What kind of impact will this have on the city?," Kristoff asked rhetorically. "Will it affect our police department, in terms of the number of officers, or our fire department?"

Kristoff also said he wanted to know if the city will be credited for the creation of new low-income housing for the monks and nuns living on the site. West Sacramento is required by state mandates to provide certain quotas of affordable housing, and the distribution of this housing has caused controversies in the city's recent past.

He added that his aim is not to deny the new buyers of the land -- the Dharma Realm Buddhist Association -- its right to use the land for religous purposes, since that is a proper use within this part of the commercial district.

But he said that some of the conversion's potential effects might be mitigated through negotiation. For instance, the on-site housing could perhaps be kept on the tax rolls.

ROBBERY

"(The suspect) got nervous while he was waiting, and grabbed the victim's coin purse and left in a white van," said Sgt. Rick Mayoral of the West Sacramento Police Department.

The van, driven by a woman, departed eastbound on West Capitol Ave.

A vehicle matching its description was stopped shortly afterwards, and the victim identified both the driver and the robbery suspect.

Dennis Michael King, a 46-year old transient, and Cheryl Marie Anderson, a 31-year old from Portland, were arrested. A toy gun was found in the van and is believed to be the one used in the robbery.

A third person in the van was briefly detained and then released, after police became convinced that he had been asleep during the commission of the crime.

The mind of man is capable of anything—because everything is in it, all the past as well as all the future.

will go the extra mile to put his family above politics. I (hope) you won't rough him up too much because he is a faithful republican with family values, okay. You stated it so eloquently when you said we disagree on politics; however, we disagree on more, your first letter said I was beating a dead horse by complaining about the trains in back of my property. Well, the dead horse got up and ran the Kentucky Derby and won. Maybe you should beat a dead horse, it brings luck. Oh, do you suppose Teddy's drinking may be caused from leaving Mary Jo Kopechkne in a car with the top only four feet under water and waiting nine hours to report it? Give me a break.

Opening lead — three of diamonds.

It is said that in war every new weapon gives rise to a counter-weapon. In much the same way, many bidding and play conventions can frequently be turned against their users.

Consider this deal where the bidding went as shown. South's two spade bid was not based on the normal complement of at least 17 high-card points generally associated with a jump-shift response, but his bid may be accepted as correct, considering the enormous power of his spades. South was on the verge of a slam the moment his partner opened the bidding, and he announced that news by the immediate jump-shift.

East's double of six spades, by contrast, was conventional. In the given sequence, it asked West to lead the first suit bid by dummy — namely, hearts.

The significance of the double was not lost upon North, who realized that a heart lead through the A-Q could prove fatal. So North very wisely ran to six notrump, a contract which proved untouchable against any opening lead. He lost a club trick, but that was all.

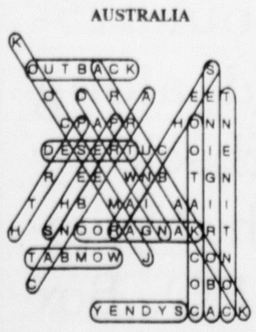

East was in the unfortunate position where, if he passed six spades, West would probably lead a diamond, while if he doubled, he risked chasing the opponents into six notrump. On the whole, East was right to double, since there was no assurance that either North or South would budge after the double. In the actual case, East was a lost soul either way.
